DEAR FRIENDS,

In Ohio, more and more people are worrying about how they'll feed their families. In fact, 1 in 6 people in Ohio don't always know where their next meal will come from, and 1 in 4 are children. Sadly, hunger is more than just missing a meal. It can be a feeling of hopelessness, and can lead to nutrition and nourishment taking a back seat to just getting by. When a hunger crisis hits, we respond by reaching out to one another, making sure our neighbors aren't suffering. It's why we do what we do at the Akron-Canton Regional Foodbank.

Our community is worth it. Delivering massive amounts of food to hundreds of different agencies across the region; donating and collecting millions of pounds of fresh produce; saving that same produce from being turned over in the field—it's all worth it. As for our recent award—the Feeding America 2012 Member of the Year—it belongs to the community, to our invaluable volunteers, incredible staff, tireless Board and to every agency that believes their community is worth the very best.

TOGETHER, WE'RE NOURISHING HOPE IN OHIO.

THE STRONGEST LEADERSHIP IS BUILT ON TRUST

It's people like George Sarkis, our Board Chairman, who believe their community is worth the hard work and dedication that make the Foodbank the success that it is.

IT DIDN'T TAKE US LONG TO FIGURE OUT THAT, IN ORDER TO DELIVER AS MUCH FOOD AS POSSIBLE TO OUR NEIGHBORS IN NEED, WE'D NEED TO PUT OURSELVES IN A POSITION OF LEADERSHIP. So when the Foodbank received the Feeding America 2012 Member of the Year Award, we didn't applaud ourselves. We did, however, feel pretty good. We felt good because we knew how many lives had been changed after being lifted out of hunger. We felt energized, knowing this was the time to enhance our role in the community, having been recognized as the most efficient and innovative food bank in America. And we felt a sense of responsibility knowing this was an opportunity to do it again and again, until the burden of hunger no longer holds Ohio back from reaching its full potential. For our staff, volunteers, board of directors and donors, the best award isn't a trophy. It's realizing we're one of the best and most trusted when it comes to doing what's right for our community.

FRESH PRODUCE NOURISHES MORE THAN JUST HOPE

Terry Gram of Arrowhead Orchard is one of many local partners in the Ohio Agricultural Clearance Program, which provided the Foodbank with more than 4.5 million pounds of fresh produce in 2012.

6.4 MILLION

pounds of fresh produce were distributed in 2012.

ONE OF THE MANY SAD TRUTHS ABOUT HUNGER is that when it becomes a reality for someone, fresh fruits and vegetables are often overlooked, usually because price and quantity take priority over quality and proper nutrition. The goal of the Foodbank isn't only to end hunger, but also to properly nourish those in need. This means fresh produce is critical. In 2012, we set the daring goal of supplying at least 5 million pounds of fresh produce to agencies across the region—but we surpassed that goal by a whopping 28 percent, ultimately delivering 6.4 million pounds. Clearly we're delivering a very healthy portion of fresh produce to our hungry neighbors. We're nourishing more than just hope in Ohio. We're nourishing health, too.

A woman with reddish-brown hair, wearing a dark grey hoodie and white gloves, is smiling while sorting green vegetables in a black bin. The background is a blurred kitchen or food preparation area.

OUR NETWORK EXISTS BECAUSE OF VOLUNTEERS

Once the storm of hunger passes, people often want to give back. If they can't give back with donations, they give their time, which is equally valuable, and is a vital part of what makes the Foodbank possible. What goes around comes around.

YEAR AFTER YEAR, THE SUCCESS STORY IS SO OFTEN THE SAME.

A client finds themselves in a hunger situation, then is lifted out of hunger and lands on their feet because of donated food. Then, whether it's to balance their karma or just to lend a helping hand, they give back and pay it forward. Many frequently donate their time to the very agency that helped them in their time of need. These volunteers are the people who make it happen. The Foodbank is carried, supported and elevated in large part because of the heartfelt dedication of volunteers. Amazingly, of the 500+ programs currently fighting hunger in our area, the vast majority operate on donated time. In fact, the Foodbank alone would require 17 full time employees to match the jaw-dropping total of 36,000 hours donated by our volunteers in 2012. Nothing nourishes hope in the heart of someone facing hunger more than an act of kindness from a complete stranger.

FOOD BELONGS ON THE TABLE NOT IN A LANDFILL

Each year a typical household throws away an estimated 474 pounds of food. In Ohio, that's enough to cover an entire football field stacked as high as the Empire State Building. Our goal is to re-route that food to make sure it ends up doing what it was intended to do: be eaten.

in Feeding America's network of 202 food banks for our on time food pickups

FOOD IS PRECIOUS, BUT IT ISN'T ALWAYS TREATED AS SUCH.

Every day, massive amounts of good, usable food are simply thrown out. We're ensuring this tragic waste is kept to an absolute minimum. In our unyielding effort to end hunger in our community, we can't rely on food drives alone. We often work behind the scenes, collecting food in ways many may not have considered. For example, food manufacturers and retailers often end up with more food than they can possibly sell. Instead of disposing of this good food, they donate it to the Foodbank. Our timely and efficient system of pickups and deliveries was recognized by Feeding America as a model for moving food from the threat of the landfill to the nourishment of the dinner table.
