

AKRON-CANTON REGIONAL

FOOD

FEEDING OUR NEIGHBORS TOGETHER

2020 Annual Report

When 2020 began, no one could have imagined that a pandemic would define almost every aspect of our lives. Here, at the Akron-Canton Regional Foodbank, we planned on focusing our energy and efforts on achieving the milestone of narrowing the Meal Gap – we had been closing in on it for so long and launching the public phase of our capital campaign to do exactly that. Instead, we found ourselves in a global health crisis that increased the Meal Gap over 20 percent in our region, sending thousands of our neighbors into emergency food lines for the first time and transforming nearly every aspect of our work.

But our hunger-relief partners, donors, volunteers and staff came together to support this community. They rose to every challenge in 2020, bravely facing their own obstacles, fears and frustrations. It was a year when outside forces demanded a lot from us, and yet we were determined to radiate compassion and light for our struggling neighbors. I'm so incredibly proud of the work, courage and tenacity of all who engaged in local hunger-relief efforts. Our mission has never been as widely felt, supported or appreciated.

Though 2020 is behind us, families who lost everything because of the pandemic still need our support. It will take months, if not years, for families to rebound from the significant losses endured. The long days and nights in this work will persist, and so will we. In this challenge, I believe we have found our finest hour. This tragic, messy, exhausting experience came along to show us who we really are, what we stand for and what we're capable of.

Because of your support and generosity, we entered 2021 better resourced than any other year, and we have a bold plan to make the most of it. I invite you to check out our community investment plan toward the end of this report. In 2021, we will buy more food and support our hunger-relief partners to the highest degree. We will open a brand new facility in Canton with a cutting edge food pantry and new programs to connect hunger and health. Indeed, we will not rest until our vision of a thriving community free of hunger becomes a reality. The future is bright, my friends, and it's possible because of you, your partnership and your faith in us. We thank you.

With gratitude,

Daniel R. Flowers

▶ THE IMPACT OF COVID-19 ON HUNGER

So many of our neighbors found themselves seeking food assistance in 2020, many for the very first time. Because of generous donors like you, we heard countless stories of gratitude and saw hope shining in people's eyes. Thank you for making a difference for our neighbors.

THE ESTIMATED INCREASE IN THE DEMAND FOR FOOD AS FAMILIES STRUGGLE TO REBOUND FROM THE PANDEMIC

Hunger can be experienced differently depending upon a family's unique circumstance. Hunger isn't always a dire situation in which families have nothing to eat, but instead can often be seen in the subtle choices a family must make.

Meet Char. She's 65, was raised in Barberton, and is a semi-retired house cleaner. Married with four grown children, Char will soon help her stepfather move in with her. Because of his age, it's too difficult and worrisome for him to live on his own, and COVID-19 has exacerbated this.

Char has been picking up food from the Barberton Salvation Army for her stepfather for more than two years. Receiving pantry staples and fresh produce from the food program helps extend his social security, making planning his budget easier. Not only does it enable him to pay his other bills, but it offers him the opportunity to stay connected and engaged with others, which is important for a man his age.

"The food he receives from the pantry allows him to have a meal with his friends at the senior apartment complex where he lives," explained Char. And though a simple meal with friends may not seem like much to some, for Char's stepfather, it means the world.

Char is also connected to the Salvation Army; she's been volunteering there for six years. Two times per week, she assists with food distributions, helps in the pantry and packs food orders. She enjoys interacting with the people she meets.

"It's nice to give back because you never know when you'll be in that situation."

Char, 65
Barberton, Ohio

Keywanna, 42
Akron, Ohio

When most families were conserving resources and limiting extended family gatherings because of COVID-19, Keywanna and her husband opened their hearts and home to care for five nieces and nephews, in addition to their two biological children.

Keywanna's siblings both experienced life-altering health circumstances, making caring for their own children extremely difficult. Her brother is on dialysis; her sister is relearning daily tasks after suffering a stroke. And though Keywanna's resilient mother could probably handle raising her grandkids, Keywanna stepped in to offer support.

Then the pandemic hit and both she and her husband were out of work and needed to figure out how they were going to care for their family of nine.

"I was fine before we got hit with this. I'm used to having what we need, but I'm not afraid to ask for help – I have a family and I'm going to do what I have to do."

Keywanna has found support and resources at a variety of local programs, including financial support to ensure she stays in her home, help with career readiness and job placement, and food assistance at her local food pantry. Without the food pantry, "We would struggle. My family would suffer, we'd have more stress and we wouldn't know how we were going to put food on the table. This place makes a difference."

"I learned what doesn't break you makes you stronger."

DRIVE-THRU GROCERY DISTRIBUTIONS WERE HOSTED AT THE FOODBANK'S FACILITY IN 2020 — NINE MORE THAN THE PREVIOUS YEAR.

▶ RESPONDING TO THE INCREASED NEED IN NEW WAYS

The Foodbank's core work is centered around securing surplus food from retailers and manufacturers and distributing it to hunger-relief programs within its eight-county service region. It's been conducting this work diligently for nearly 40 years.

In 2020, the Foodbank distributed more than 36 million pounds of food, helping provide access to the equivalent of 27.4 million meals.

In 2018, the Foodbank piloted a grocery distribution from its warehouse directly serving individuals and families in Summit County struggling with hunger. The Neighborhood Distribution became a monthly distribution in 2019, serving approximately 300 families within a two-hour timeframe.

In 2020, the coronavirus stripped many people of their livelihoods, families' savings were depleted, and Northeast Ohioans were uncertain how they were going to continue to put food on the table.

Hunger-relief partners continued to increase their food orders to keep pace with the demand, and in turn, we provided more free food on the Foodbank's menu than ever before.

Your support helped the Foodbank rapidly pivot and respond to the increased demand as the need for food assistance saw a tremendous surge across the region.

Your help also made it possible for us to increase the frequency of our Neighborhood Distributions to better serve local residents. At its peak, the distribution served 1,800 families in a two-hour timeframe, providing them with fresh produce, frozen protein, dairy items, and at times, face masks and toilet paper.

In 2020, the Foodbank's Neighborhood Distributions provided more than 2 million pounds, enough food for 1.8 million meals, a 207 percent increase from the previous year.

▶ ENDURING A PERFECT STORM OF CHALLENGES

COVID-19 presented so many uncertainties and challenges to the Foodbank. Early on in the pandemic, one of the greatest unknowns was how the economic hardship would affect local families and for how long. Increasing the frequency of our grocery distributions to the general public was an impactful way we could reach families in need.

Our hunger-relief partners also needed to ramp up their distribution efforts because more and more families were waiting in lines outside their facilities in need of food, too. The need for emergency food surged as families struggled to stay in their homes, pay their bills, serve as the full-time caregiver for their children and buy nourishing food to put on the table.

Because of the increase in need, food was going out of the building twice as fast as product was coming in. During the peak of COVID-19, inventory hit a 10-year low. The Foodbank saw some of its largest distribution days in its history, distributing more than 311,000 pounds in one day — the equivalent of nearly 260,000 meals.

But when COVID-19 began to impact Northeast Ohioans, securing food became difficult. Many food orders were canceled because of product availability. Manufacturers either didn't have enough product to fulfill orders or had depleted their packing materials. Typically, food is received 20-30 days after it's ordered; the shortages delayed deliveries to 90-120 days.

Certain food items couldn't be obtained at all. Staples like peanut butter, beef stew and macaroni and cheese were hard to come by.

Rich Osborne (pictured top left), senior manager of food acquisition and logistics, plays a significant role in securing food products for the Foodbank. He works directly with wholesalers, food brokers, the Ohio Association of Foodbanks and Feeding America to bring in truckloads of food from local and national suppliers.

"I take pride in my job and receive fulfillment by helping folks get the nutritious food they need. You can't tell who's hungry — it could be any one of us. And hunger affects your whole attitude, your whole day. To have to worry about how you're going to eat, where your next meal is coming from, it really puts things into perspective," said Rich.

Despite the economic hardships felt by many, the Foodbank experienced significant generosity throughout the pandemic. Local and national donors came forward with financial support, stimulus check donations were received, toilet paper was donated, and milk and pork rescued from local farms were donated rather than thrown out. The Foodbank was grateful for the support, as the amount of purchased food needed to keep up with the demand increased by 39 percent.

Thankfully, because of you, the Foodbank was able to maintain its inventory and could continue serving families facing hunger. Rich references how impactful it was for him to participate in one of the first Neighborhood Distributions offered during the pandemic. "It showed us what the need really looked like. Seeing all the cars lined up for miles proved how many people were being affected by this and needed assistance."

Because of your support, we were able to address the incredible need felt by our community members despite an all-time low in inventory, supply chain disruptions and operational challenges.

▶ KEEPING UP WITH THE INCREASED DEMAND FOR FOOD ASSISTANCE

The need for emergency food from your Foodbank reached an all-time high during the pandemic, resulting in more food than ever being distributed from our warehouse. But the possible spread of COVID-19 caused the Foodbank to pause and reevaluate how to logistically adhere to social distancing and safety protocols. These guidelines made it difficult to keep pace with the growing demand.

building requesting all available staff to report to the volunteer center if able to help.

The Ohio National Guard arrived at the Foodbank in mid-March offering much-needed relief and support to Foodbank staff and operations. They became integral members of our Foodbank family, serving our community throughout 2020 and into 2021.

MEMBERS OF THE OHIO NATIONAL GUARD WERE ASSIGNED TO THE FOOD-BANK FROM MID-MARCH THROUGH 2021.

Additionally, members of the Guard perfected the Foodbank's drive-thru grocery distribution, serving as many as 1,800 households in a two-hour timeframe.

We are so thankful for the Ohio National Guard and their service to our community. And we couldn't do this work without the dedicated volunteers, who despite the known health risks, were eager to come back to the Foodbank to serve alongside us.

Typically, the volunteer center is the centerpiece of this work. With nearly 100 serving each day, volunteers serve as an invaluable resource, providing 60,000+ hours of service annually, sorting food, packing food boxes, bottling soap and so much more. When the pandemic began infecting more and more people, it forced the Foodbank to close its doors to all visitors and volunteers temporarily as a safety precaution.

"I never really thought about hunger before coming here, but seeing the different people come through the Foodbank's grocery distribution and seeing the lines of cars of people waiting for food — it's opened my eyes," said Master Sergeant Daniel Fortney, the sergeant leading the team.

Sgt. Fortney and the Guard members were vital in the Foodbank's crisis response. With their help, we were able to quickly pack and distribute emergency food boxes since volunteer shifts ceased. With the increase in demand for food, warehouse staff were overloaded with hunger-relief partner orders; Guard members were certified on power equipment and soon began helping pick orders.

They also offered direct support to hunger-relief programs. Using the Guard's large vehicles, food orders were delivered directly to food programs. Guard members also helped partners with their food distributions since they, too, were in need of additional volunteer support.

"It was devastating," said Suk Shanafelt (pictured top), Foodbank volunteer coordinator. "They're like my family, and they simply love to help people — they wanted to come in and work."

With a significant increase in demand for food, the team of four who manage volunteer center efforts were at a loss for how the work would still get done. "We still needed to feed people," explained Suk.

To ensure emergency food boxes were being assembled, everyone needed to chip in; it was an all-hands-on-deck approach. Announcements from the loudspeaker could be heard echoing through the

▶ WORKING TOGETHER WITH A RESILIENT AND DEDICATED NETWORK

The economic impacts of COVID-19 caused more families than ever before to seek emergency food assistance from our hunger-relief partners. More than 30 percent of families visiting pantries within our network were seeking help for the very first time.

For some partner programs, the increase and need for a contactless model was too difficult to manage. Some had to temporarily close because they didn't have the manpower or space to accommodate a drive-thru style distribution model. Others closed because they were managed primarily by volunteers, retirees at a higher risk for COVID-19.

The Foodbank worked hard to provide support to its network of partners. It offered virtual conversations to share knowledge and best practices with the pantries, hot meal sites, shelters and other food programs attempting to navigate this "new normal."

We distributed nearly $2.2 million in capacity-building resources to partners, including items like freezers, coolers, shelving and transportation, and in food grant support — nearly a 120 percent increase from 2019.

Our staff and National Guard members regularly assisted at partners' food distributions to make up for lost volunteers. The Foodbank also began delivering food directly to food programs with the help of guard members and their military vehicles. This saved partners countless hours shuttling to and from the Foodbank to pick up their food orders, gas and wear and tear on their vehicles, and staff and volunteer time. This initiative was so well received that the Foodbank applied for a Feeding America grant to purchase a truck and hire a staff person to continue these services well into the future.

"When I learned about the delivery opportunity, I cried," said Windham School District pantry volunteer, Crystal Hickman. "I was so thankful and excited, as this is such a huge blessing to us and the children we serve. We'll be able to provide them with more food."

For partners that were able to remain open, they met the numerous challenges caused by COVID-19 head-on with relentless commitment. Feeding Medina County exemplified solid dedication to serving its neighbors in need, adjusting its distribution models to meet the community's needs safely and efficiently.

For example, it serves 32 schools throughout the county with a backpack program, offering three meals, snacks and breakfasts to 1,000 children weekly. Since children were no longer in school, delivering the backpacks became a highly coordinated effort across the various districts, volunteers and Feeding Medina County staff.

The organization also increased the frequency of Direct Distributions offered once the implications of the pandemic were felt.

"Medina County is often viewed as an affluent community, but we have seen a 54 percent increase in families struggling with hunger because of COVID-19. We want to make sure the families are getting as much food as we can to help get them through a few weeks at a time," said retired Executive Director Sandy Hinkle.

"We're very lucky to partner with the Foodbank. Our partnership allows us to do what we need to do to take care of our community. It's just not okay — hunger just isn't an option."

▶ THE LONG ROAD AHEAD

2020 showed us just how fragile food security can be. Prior to the pandemic, the Foodbank was entering the final year of its strategic plan and was closer than ever to meeting the Meal Gap. The Meal Gap is the difference between how many meals are needed to provide food security in the region and how many meals the Foodbank and its network are able to provide.

As the pandemic set in, families lost wages and businesses shuttered. Essential workers and work-from-home households struggled with childcare, healthcare, educating their children and managing budgets.

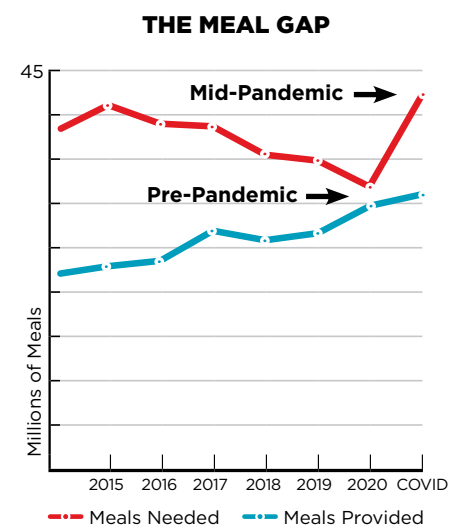

But because of our loyal supporters and generous friends, the Foodbank worked hard to ensure hunger did not become another symptom of the pandemic.

Thanks to additional government commodities and a strong national and local response, the Foodbank was able to provide access to 27.4 million meals in 2020, a volume of food distribution not planned or expected for another 5 years.

Current projections indicate that the Foodbank's heightened response will need to continue as the recovery of local families will likely take years. Though more and more people are heading back to work and getting vaccinated, economic recovery will not equate to overnight food security for all.

Our network of hunger-relief partners continues to grapple with and seek solutions to the harsh reality that food insecurity will not vanish once the economy rebounds. That's why your support is so crucial.

Your continued support is vital to helping your Foodbank meet the persistent need as families catch up on missed payments and rebuild their savings.

OUR NETWORK WILL CONTINUE TO GRAPPLE WITH AND SEEK SOLUTIONS TO THE REALITY THAT FOOD INSECURITY WILL NOT VANISH ONCE THE ECONOMY REBOUNDS.

▶ FROM RESPONSE TO RECOVERY

2020 was a year of considerable generosity from the community, and, despite additional expenses related to our crisis response, the Foodbank is positioned to extend significant recovery support to our strained hunger-relief network based on their input about where the greatest needs exist.

In 2021, the Foodbank is enacting a bold plan to support the short- and long-term food security needs of the region.

BECAUSE OF YOUR GENEROSITY, WE HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO PURSUE A BOLD COMMUNITY INVESTMENT PLAN.”

SHELLY HINTON
FOODBANK VICE PRESIDENT

$4.3M

IN INVESTMENTS FOR COVID-19 RECOVERY EFFORTS IN 2021

The Foodbank and its partners have always shared the cost of procuring, storing and distributing food to the community, with the Foodbank taking on the majority of these expenses. But because of the community’s generosity in 2020, we are waiving all fees for all network partners throughout 2021.

THIS WILL ALLOW NETWORK PARTNERS TO MAKE MAJOR INVESTMENTS IN CAPACITY-BUILDING RESOURCES

like freezers, coolers, shelving and transportation, to better serve our community. Additionally, the Foodbank has implemented several recovery efforts which are outlined on the next page. All of this is essential as we slowly move from response to recovery.

Grant funding has allowed us to purchase an additional refrigerated truck to make food deliveries directly to hunger-relief partners, replicating the services offered by the National Guard during our COVID-19 response, which will save partners valuable time and resources.

An additional vehicle has been added to the Foodbank’s fleet to serve as a mobile pop-up pantry, providing food access to neighborhoods with limited food resources.

We will continue to bring food to food insecure households through our partnership with DoorDash, United Way of Summit & Medina and CARE, the Cooperative Assistance & Relief Everywhere, Inc.

An increased number of drive-thru grocery distributions will continue at the Foodbank’s warehouse in Akron and throughout the community.

Partnerships with several local health systems will highlight the relationship between hunger and health, recognizing that access to healthy food is a social determinant of health outcomes.

A new 40,000 square foot Stark County Campus will open in Canton which will include an onsite food pantry. Here, we plan to pilot new food security initiatives and engage the broader community.

THE PURPOSE OF A PROJECT LIKE THIS IS TO CREATE SOMETHING THAT ENDURES BEYOND OURSELVES.”

DAN FLOWERS
FOODBANK PRESIDENT & CEO

“I am humbled by the tremendous collaboration and generous support of the community in helping make the Foodbank’s vision of ‘reaching further and feeding more’ a reality. Building the much-needed Stark County Campus ensures all individuals have access to nourishing food which moves us closer to a thriving community free of hunger.”

WILLIAM SHIVERS
Huntington National Bank
2020 Board Chair and Capital Campaign Co-Chair

In February 2020, the Foodbank publicly announced the launch of its $11.5 million capital campaign in the lobby of The Canton Repository (pictured top right). Surrounded by community leaders, campaign volunteers, elected officials, board members and early donors, President and CEO Dan Flowers shared the Foodbank’s vision of a hunger-free community and how a successful campaign would help achieve this vision.

Growing for Good: The Campaign to Reach Further and Feed More will fund the building of the new Foodbank facility in Canton and will help support a mission-critical expansion of the Akron facility. The campaign will increase the Foodbank’s capacity to source and distribute even more food to the eight counties it serves, a crucial component that will aid the Foodbank for future disaster response efforts. During the pandemic, the Foodbank had to utilize five different offsite facilities to store additional products.

Other advantages include optimized operational logistics of a two-campus infrastructure that will provide an Akron campus for food procurement and storage, and a Canton campus to support increased distribution and volunteer activities, helping the Foodbank achieve peak efficiency. Having two distribution points throughout the region will also increase access to nutritious food, and the Canton location will reduce the drive time for many hunger-relief partners, saving them valuable resources – time and fuel costs.

Achieving Our Vision

Construct a new Stark County Campus

- The new facility will be a multi-faceted campus for raising awareness of new programs and engaging thousands of volunteers. It will also allow us to serve our hunger-relief partners more efficiently.
- The Keith D. Monda Family Food Pantry & Resource Center will allow us to pilot food security initiatives and support food insecure families in the Canton area.
- The Danbury Senior Living Teaching Kitchen will be included for food-related training and educational activities.

Expansion of the Akron campus

- Relocated distribution docks will allow for safer and more efficient loading and distribution.
- Expanded dry storage will increase building capacity.
- Expanded cooler and freezer storage will accommodate increased distribution of fresh, healthy foods.

*During 2019, the Foodbank began fundraising for an $11.5 million capital campaign that is funding the construction of an additional facility in Canton and an expansion at the Akron location. These key capital projects will address organizational capacity constraints and create new distribution points, increasing access to nutritious food for the community.

During 2020, a significant share of assets derived from COVID-19 related contributions will be invested in recovery response and infrastructure in subsequent years. Please see pages 18-19 for details.

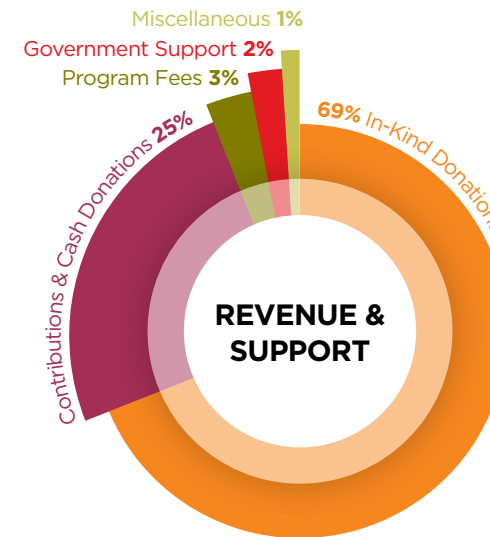

We are committed to efficiently and effectively investing your donations in the fight against hunger.
